Gang's fuel scam cons
6,750 people who thought they were getting cheap
electricity

By Lucy Purdy

HARINGEY has been revealed as a hot-spot for a scam run by criminal gangs in which residents are tricked into buying "cheap" top-ups for their expensive electricity meters.

In the past 12 months a staggering 6,750 people in the borough have already fallen victim to the sophisticated doorstep scam which preys on those who use top-up meters – already the most expensive ways to pay utility bills and normally installed in the poorest households.

The gangs masterminding the scam have already approached nearly 80,000 households in London offering fake top-ups so far this year – and the money-spinning ruse is showing no signs of slowing down. The top-ups do not offer what they say they will and householders end up having to pay for fuel twice.

Now police, councillors and staff from Haringey's Citizens' Advice Bureau have backed a new Top-Up Safe campaign organised by Energy UK designed to stop more vulnerable people becoming unwitting victims, particularly as temperatures plunge and the expensive Christmas season fast approaches.

Chris Barclay, acting borough commander of Haringey police, said: "We always urge residents to be wary of unsolicited doorstep callers and the message of this campaign is clear: don't buy electricity meter top-ups at the doorstep.

"We want to inform people that this type of fraudulent activity is taking place and help them take action to avoid becoming a victim and having to pay out twice for their energy."

Thousands have found their hard-earned cash lining criminals' pockets.

Audrey Gallacher, head of energy at Consumer Focus – an organisation which champions consumers' rights – admitted the scam is "very worrying".

He said: "Thousands of households have already found their hard-earned cash ended up lining the pockets of criminals instead of paying for their energy."

Energy companies have also received reports of the bogus traders acting in a threatening way to residents and arrests have been made across the capital. The scam is of particular concern because people must let the criminals into their homes to access their electricity meters to get the fake top-ups.

Customers are being urged to only buy their electricity meter top-ups from official Pay-Point and Payzone retailers or the Post Office to avoid being scammed.

Any customer worried that they may have been affected can call Consumer Direct on 08454 040506 or their energy supplier. news.haringey@nlhnews.co.uk

Contract is ended with kids hospital

NHS Haringey is on the lookout for an organisation to take over children's health services in the borough after Great Ormond Street Hospital chiefs decided against renewing their contract.

Great Ormond Street Hospital, which currently runs services such as health visitors, school nurses and speech and language therapists in the borough and which ran clinics where Baby Peter Connelly went before dying, will no longer provide these from next year.

Dr Jane Collins, chief executive of the hospital, said: "We're proud of the contribution we've made to helping children in Haringey have a healthy start. And we're proud of the work done by our staff to achieve that."

"By mutual agreement with NHS Haringey, they are going to look again at the provision of children's services in Haringey and we will no longer continue to manage these services after April 1 next year."

Ian Wilson, interim chief executive of NHS Haringey, said: "We've been very happy with Great Ormond Street Hospital's management of children's services in Haringey and recent external reviews have been extremely positive about these services."

"We have mutually agreed that, given national changes in the provision of community services, it is right to look again at how services are provided."

Shoppers invited to cross to the other side of Wood Green

A NEW diagonal pedestrian crossing at one of the busiest junctions in Wood Green has been officially opened.

Commuters and shoppers will now be able to cross directly from Wood Green Underground station to the corner diametrically opposite, adjacent to Morrisons, after the £400,000 crossing came into use on Friday. Unlike the famous crossing at Oxford Street, the one in Wood Green is made of just one axis and is the product of months of building work. Shoppers and commuters were among the first to try it for size after council and Transport for London representatives officially opened the crossing on Friday.

It was funded by TfL. Haringey Council cabinet member for neighbourhoods, Nilgun Canver, said: "In order to cross over to the Morrisons side of the road from the Underground pedestrians have had to negotiate two busy junctions.

"This diagonal crossing will be quicker and will make the journey to and from the underground station easier and safer.

"It will also prevent people from jumping the barriers, as they do now, to cut out the double crossing.

"The traditional crossing routes will remain but have been improved to make them more accessible for groups such as wheelchair users and those with sight, hearing or mobility impairments."

The scheme also includes stop lines for cyclists on all approaches to the signal junction, improvements to the street lighting at the junction, new pavement surfaces, extra space for bicycle parking and extension of taxi parking in the High Road.

Plea to undo trend of foster children being sent outside the borough

Claims that far-away placements are damaging wellbeing and hitting the council coffers by £25k per child

By Lucy Purdy

CHILDREN in care in Haringey could enjoy a better quality of life and £7million could be saved in a huge revamp of the borough's fostering service, opposition Liberal Democrat councillors claim.

They have challenged Labour to overhaul the system in which more than 600 vulnerable children are currently being looked after. Though national targets recommend that councils foster 80 per cent of children within their borders, Haringey staff are currently only managing to place 30 per cent of children within the borough - and this is costing taxpayers' dearly, according to Councillor Rachel Allison, who has spearheaded the Lib Dem campaign.

The mother-of-two told the Advertiser: "It costs on average £25,000 more per year to place a child outside the borough rather than with a Haringey Council foster carer. The outcomes for children can be so much better if they are placed close to their wider family, their school and friends."

"We need to focus on what is best for our children and we owe it to them to ensure that we do all we can to increase the numbers of Haringey foster carers."

She criticised Labour for signing up only 119 foster carers to its books and suggested that the council's current recruitment campaign is not working.

"Why aren't we trying harder to recruit foster carers?" she said.

"I can't believe that in a borough of 230,000 people there are only 119 willing to foster."

"That was a shock to me."

She enlisted the help of a "mystery shopper" friend to call up and enquire about fostering and said she struggled to get through to a relevant officer, waiting a week to receive an information pack on fostering through the post when councils in neighbouring boroughs sent them out the next day.

Councillor Allison, who sits on Haringey Council's Corporate Parenting Advisory Committee, described the council's response as "woefully inadequate" and has now launched a drive to sign up 220 more foster carers in Haringey.

"I think people are being put off by the way their enquiries are handled, the council's website and by a lack of support. Private agencies don't seem to actually pay people more but they seem to offer much more in the way of support," she said.

Appeal: Rachel

"I think fostering is the kind of thing where, if you do it once you will continue doing it because it is so rewarding. I have two children of school age myself and I feel very passionately about this."

"I think the system needs to be completely shaken up."

But Lorna Reith, cabinet member for children and young people in the Labour administration, said many of the out of borough placements are in places such as Enfield, Waltham Forest, Camden and Hackney, which border Haringey. She added: "Fostering and adoption are an important part of how we support young people and families. We are always looking to see if there are any ways that we can improve the service and increase the number of our foster carers."

"We have changed the way we publicise the service - for example having stalls at public events."

"Where possible, we try to put children with carers close to their own homes. We have recently set up a consortium with four other north London boroughs to cut the costs of advertising and recruitment of foster carers."

Councillor Reith also said that there may be safeguarding reasons for a child not to be placed close to their family.

Appeal to help prevent more suicides at Archway Bridge

By Lucy Purdy

CAMPAIGNERS are demanding that a free SOS phone is reconnected on Archway Bridge following three deaths in the past month at the notorious suicide spot.

The tragedies have prompted concerned residents to urge the authorities to do more to prevent similar deaths in the future.

Sarah Cope, a resident from Highgate, said: "I remember the old SOS phone at the end of the bridge, and the box is still there with the wires seemingly intact. Although there are people very determined to commit suicide, there are others who can be talked around and given help. This is what we need a freephone for."

"With the economic situation, people losing their jobs and houses, we cannot wait for yet more avoidable deaths to impact irrecoverably on families."

"The messages that are currently displayed on the bridge from friends and family of the dead men are utterly heartbreaking, and we must do everything we can to prevent further avoidable tragedies occurring."

"When people go up on the bridge, they often wait around for quite a while before jumping. If there is help there then they will be able to access it."

Sue Hessel, the officer for vulnerable groups at Haringey Federation of Residents' Association is also involved.

She said: "The Samaritans have put up a couple of laminated posters with their number – but one is already covered in graffiti and illegible. Also, I was shocked to learn that their helpline isn't a freephone number. Call box charges are high. Someone suicidal may not have any money, or even the right change.

Tragic: Flowers left on the bridge to commemorate another victim

"Sadly we just know there will be more suicides to come. People who are out of a job can be out of their mind with worry. And mental health services have been cut and cut."

Campaigners are also pushing for signs offering help to be installed on all four corners of the bridge but will have to seek permission to screw them into the brickwork as the structure is listed.

They have also been contacted by a firm which makes large-scale "crash nets". They say netting could be placed under the bridge to catch people attempting suicide and averting a potential pile-up on the busy Archway Road below.

Ms Hessel added: "The company which contacted us said that it can supply and fit the net for £95,000."

"I wonder how much it costs to close off the road each time these horrific incidents occur, plus the cost of the police time, the inquest, and the ongoing counselling required by families of the victims?"

Spurs set for new stadium

SPURS have overcome what could turn out to be one of the final obstacles in their bid to transform White Hart Lane after the London Mayor gave plans the go-ahead.

Boris Johnson has backed Haringey Council on proposals to build a 56,250-seat stadium, 200 homes, a supermarket, hotel, conference facilities and public spaces – meaning the project will go ahead unless the government steps in. Council planning officials previously voted unanimously to give the Northumberland Development Project the green light.

Spurs bosses have also lodged a bid to move into the Olympic Stadium site after the London 2012 Games, going up against West Ham. A decision is expected before Christmas.

‘I’m Michael and I’m here because your head is one of the best in London’

BOUNDING into a French class in the new block at Woodside, crying “comment allez-vous?” to the delight of the class, Michael Gove did not seem like a man with the weight of the world on his shoulders.

The polite, energetic government minister certainly grabbed the attention of students when he took an interactive approach to his tour of the new building in Wood Green. Striding past walls freshly painted in lime green, purple, orange and pink, he broke off a chat with head Joan McVittie to duck into almost every room along the corridor. “Good morning. I’m Michael and I’m here because your headteacher is one of the best in London,” he announced, addressing Year 10 students learning about equations.

“I didn’t like maths when I was at school. How does this teacher here make it fun?” he asked.

A pupil, sitting by a window with the spire of Alexandra Palace in the background, answered that his teacher always explained things clearly and answered questions “properly”.

“You really love your teacher then?” probed the minister.

“Well I don’t love him. I mean, he’s my teacher,” he retorted with a mock frown, looking around at his classmates to make sure no one was laughing.

“But I do respect him.”

Though she and the minister bonded over a shared love of the Pet Shop Boys, Mrs McVittie didn’t shy away from the real issue facing her and thousands of headteachers up and down the country: how to give children the best chance of a top education on an ever-dwindling budget.

She conceded that there had been a “rocky road” to Woodside’s current success and admitted school governors had had to patch her up and send her “back into the fray” when things got tough.

But, in the minister’s own words, Woodside High School has come on “leaps and bounds” and the Scottish-born, former Times journalist seems to be taking a similarly energetic approach to his time in office.

The father-of-two faces a tough task in pushing through plans for academies, Swedish-style “free schools” and the curtailment of the Building Schools For The Future programme and is considered inexperienced by some, having only been in Westminster for five years.

Only time will tell whether he will win the backing of heads, teachers and pupils.

But judging by his reception in Wood Green this week, he seems to be heading in the right direction.

By Lucy Purdy

EMBATTLED secretary of state for education Michael Gove visited Woodside High School in Wood Green this week to officially open its brand new block.

He unveiled a plaque in the school’s new wing as part of a £28million project under the now-scrapped Building Schools For The Future programme.

Students from Woodside High School are being brought together with upper school students from the Moselle and William C Harvey special schools to form an “inclusive learning campus” which is expected to be completely finished by September next year.

The school has been praised for its rapid improvement after 47 per cent of pupils achieved five A*-C grades in last year’s GCSE exams – compared to just six per cent five years ago.

But the event was not all congratulatory.

Mr Gove came under fire from headteacher Joan McVittie and council children’s services director Peter Lewis about some of the cost-cutting ideas in his controversial education white paper and was challenged to help the thousands of families in Haringey who are homeless or struggling to get by on low incomes.

Mr Gove was also confronted on his decision to scrap the education maintenance allowance (EMA), a weekly payment of up to £30 which helps young people aged 16-19 to stay on in education, despite pledging to protect it from the chop before the general election.

Some 70 per cent of students at Woodside High School rely on the grant, 90 per cent of whom receive the maximum payout.

Speaking at the launch event on Monday, Mr Lewis said: “I would welcome discussions with your officials on how we can successfully manage what is going to be an increasing demand on low-income families. The other issue is the education maintenance allowance.

“Students shouldn’t find that learning stops at 16. There is a huge challenge for us as a local authority on how we manage that trend.”

Mrs McVittie, who has been at the helm of the school for four years, said the new building would give pupils “the opportunity to really stretch and grow” and that it “matches their own aspirations”.

She added: “I know the secretary of state had a really busy time last week. There are aspects of his plans which I welcome. But I would say that schools like ours are actually currently supporting a number of schools across London because they want to see how we’ve done things. It would be nice if schools like ours could have some sort of recognition.

“At the moment, if schools aren’t deemed outstanding by Ofsted, they are not allowed to join these hallowed ranks.”

Mr Gove paid tribute to the hard work of Mrs McVittie and her team of staff and teachers and said he sympathised with Haringey’s struggle to win fairer funding for its pupils in the Fair Deal For Haringey Children campaign.

He said: “I appreciate what a tough time Haringey’s local authority is having. It’s classed as an outer London borough but on the other hand it had to pay staff inner London rates. It is something which is unfair and which needs to be addressed. If I didn’t know that before I became minister, I certainly know it now.

“This school reflects its community: diverse, multi-cultural, inclusive and inspirational – and these aspirations are reflected in the building work going on.”

Sky's the limit for Alexandra Park's bird experts...

AFELLOW bird-watcher saw an alpine swift in the park one day. He was so excited that he started shaking and texted me to let me know. I was swearing when I heard the news when I was on holiday – I was so gutted that I'd missed it."

Andrew Gardener has been a keen birdwatcher since he was a boy and used to spend wintry mornings spotting nuthatches and tree creepers on long walks with his father. His talk of shaking and swearing seems at odds with his relaxed manner but we're talking about his passion. The thrill of the chase and excitement on discovering the flash of an elusive species seems capable of holding grown men bewitched.

And, as we wander around Alexandra Park on an icy cold but beautifully bright November morning, binoculars in hand and 46-year-old Andrew's seemingly limitless knowledge on tap – it becomes clearer why.

Peering up into the tree-tops just below the Palace, one of the first birds we spot is a real treat, the smallest songbird in Britain – the goldcrest. Named after the distinctive yellow strip on its head, it has a high-pitched song which some people are unable to hear and often lives in coniferous forests. We also see several long-tailed tits, easy to spot for having tails longer than their bodies, and a busy pair of nuthatches; powder-blue on their head and back.

"Goldcrests and long-tailed tits both make nests out of moss and cobwebs," explained Andrew. "The nests are cute, delicate things the shape of a ball which take a long time to build. Sometimes they have up to ten youngsters in there, all huddled together. They go around in a flock for protection; sometimes birds of other species will join them too."

Andrew is a member of the Alexandra Park Ornithological Group and also the local recorder, responsible for gathering all sightings of birds in the park and compiling reports which are then sent to the London Natural History Society.

Though Alexandra Palace is better known for its ice-skating and music concerts, its park performs pretty well in ornithological terms. Some 118 different species were recorded last year and 113 have been clocked so far this year.

And Alan Gibson, a local resident who has been bird-watching in the park for decades, established the age of one black-headed gull to be more than 29 years – the oldest recorded in Britain.

Being inexperienced, I am easily pleased at what we see. A great spotted woodpecker with its striking black, white and red feathers, clinging to a tree trunk near the deer park looks even more impressive through the binoculars and I start to get a sense of exactly why Andrew spends most of his weekends in this way.

Passion: Andrew Gardener shows Lucy a woodpecker, above

By Lucy Purdy

WE see a heron lope lazily along the bank of the reservoir, a reptilian cormorant spying out his next fishy meal and a colourful jay scuttling through crispy leaves in the woodland. The diversity of the birds we spot in just a few hours, and just metres away from busy roads and houses, is both surprising and exciting.

"The park has woodland, grassland and a reservoir which helps," Andrew explained. "We also see quite a few birds of prey – red kites and buzzards circling over London in our 'raptor watches'."

"But on the other hand, the Lea Valley is a rather obvious watercourse not too far away and it seems to attract some of the birds we might otherwise get."

Along with APOG's other members, Andrew works closely with members of the palace's parks staff on issues such as tree-felling – sometimes controversial but always carried out for sound reasons – and advises on other environmental decisions which could impact upon the park's feathered population. Andrew, whose day job is at the Ministry of Defence, advised me that "twitching" does not refer to bird-watching in general but to the practice of rushing to a spot when a rare species has been found.

"A lot of twitchers don't do the groundwork," he explained. "You can even hire a pager these days where sightings get logged centrally and then they message you within minutes and even give you directions. I had one for a while."

"But what's so rewarding is that you get to know an area inside out."

"You spot different things every time and even when you go hours without seeing much or you're tired or cold, when something out of the ordinary turns up it's more special."

Andrew laughs when I ask him if he can ever completely switch off from staring skyward. "Not really," he admitted. "You usually find yourself looking even if you're in Oxford Street – you just never know what you might see."

On the walk back to Wood Green, having seen or heard an impressive 38 species, I find myself listening out for birdcalls among the music blaring from car stereos and the crackle of a police helicopter above. If Andrew is anything to go by, bird-watching offers not only a world of fascinating characters but also an invaluable resource of scientific and environmental knowledge.

These unassuming figures, who know our landscape much better than most, help document the impact humans have on the natural world as well as the rhythm of the changing seasons.

gannets' restaurant of the year

Quick, tell us your favourite restaurant

Nomination form for Gannets' Restaurant Award

Name and address of your chosen restaurant:

Reasons for nominating this restaurant (in no more than 25 words):

Your name:

Your address:

Category (Asian/ Rest of World/ Pub food):

Post to: Gannets' Awards, North London & Herts Newspapers, 4th Floor, Refuge House, 9-10 River Front, Enfield, EN1 3SZ

THE deadline is fast approaching for you to tell us about your favourite local restaurant.

We print the nomination form for the Gannets' Restaurant Of The Year Award 2010 just twice more with a final deadline for entries of Wednesday, December 15.

That will give the Gannet Girls plenty of time to try out the top six most popular eateries over the Christmas period (lucky birds!) and make their hotly anticipated announcement in January.

Over the past few weeks we have been swamped by a paper mountain as diners across north London jot down reasons why their chosen restaurant should win our closely contested competition.

So far we have received hundreds of entry forms with more than 40 different restaurants represented. These nominations have been evenly spread across most of these eateries, which makes the last week even more crucial as we aim to find the top half dozen to go forward to our grand final.

Once the deadline has passed our gals will sit down and count all the forms. The two restaurants in each of the three categories which receive the most votes will then be visited and a final decision made as to which will win the coveted title.

We'll let you know which make it into the top six and then you can visit them – keeping a beady eye out for any greedy gannets sitting at a table next to you!

So get writing – your vote could make all the difference!

Let's Twist again

Boogaloo event is a perfect antidote to festive cliché

AND now for something completely different...

In contrast to the traditional series of carol concerts, yuletide gatherings and heart-warming roastings of chestnuts comes this twisted little affair.

Called Twisted Christmas, it aims to present an alternative take on the regular festive fun, offering a darker, stronger festive brew for drinkers, dancers and decadents everywhere.

If seasonal shopping to the sounds of Slade is already driving you nuts, then this might indeed be just the tonic featuring: a Bad Santa's Grotto (complete with nagging wife and complimentary shots of spirits), sexy elves, and bizarre Christmas characters such as the unsavoury sounding Cinderella Crack Whore wandering around the venue with her broom, searching for illicit drugs!

If that's not enough then a little bit of twisted cabaret should suffice for the evening's main course. Recently confirmed is international burlesque vamp Fifi Fatale, following a selection of warped Christmas carols sung by some very special celebrity guests, while music throughout the event will be provided by the flame-haired firecracker that is DJ Miss Red.

Trashed: Bad Santa and the elves after their last big session

Three other reasons to attend: it just so happens to be taking place at one of the coolest pubs on the planet – the Boogaloo next door to Highgate tube; so as to not ruin your weekend plans, it takes place on a Wednesday; and it only costs £5 for hours of choice entertainment. Bargain, we say!

Dressing up as your most twisted Christmas character is encouraged with the best dressed winning a special prize.

● It takes place next Wednesday and doors open at 7.30pm. Tickets available on the door.

Out and about

● JACKSONS Lane is preparing for a fantastic Christmas. The Archway venue has teamed up with Little Angel Theatre to stage their version of Roald Dahl's Fantastic Mr Fox from Saturday until the end of the month. Suitable for ages four and upwards, expect lots of beautiful puppets along with a few festive surprises. For details call the box office on 020 8341 4421.

● AN OPERA legend sings for The Whittington next Tuesday. Stage star Lesley Garrett headlines The Whittington Hospital Charity Concert at Kings Place Concert Hall in York Way, Islington. She is joined by the All Angels classical girls group and the Eschoir male voice choir along with other performers. It starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £40. For more details call the box office on 020 7520 1490.

● A 12-HOUR singathon is the ambitious event arranged for this Saturday. Crouch End's Charlie Whiteley has helped organise the event at the Grand Union, 53 Highgate Road, in Kentish Town, to raise money for Marie Curie Cancer Care, feature a variety of bands such as: The J Rays, The Gateway Drivers, Lotti, Michael Curtis and Alex Mills. There's karaoke from noon to 8pm and then live acts until midnight.

“Getting the Most out of Your Property Investment”

Superficially, lettings could be seen as relatively straightforward, and some firms do indeed regard themselves as a simple broking operation, with tenants being introduced to available properties.

However, if your investment is going to provide you with peace of mind as well as a great return, then you will want to know that the property is being managed by people who really care.

Ellis and Co's response to the ever-growing rentals market has been to take a good look at the opportunity to deliver a service to landlords which not only meets expectations, but goes way beyond. Indeed, many of our clients have commented that they have found our lettings service to be a “breath of fresh air” when compared to their previous experience!

For example, it is critical that all prospective tenants are thoroughly vetted and credit checked in order to ensure that they will not only pay the rent on time, but that they will also look after your property as if it were their own, if not better! Indeed, we are passionate about this issue, and during every tenancy we regularly visit the property personally. This not only means that we can keep an eye on how the tenants are treating it, but also allows us to advise you if any preventative maintenance should be undertaken (eg gutters cleared).

We find this ongoing relationship with your tenants is also an excellent way of showing them that you care, resulting in them treating you and your investment with the utmost respect, resulting in an optimum return and a peaceful night's sleep! After all, that's what a good letting agent is all about!

So when choosing a letting agent, why not choose the one who regards every property as if they owned it themselves? Please feel free to call Ellis and Co for an initial chat on 020 8363 8282.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. Classified Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed "Trade Advertisements", and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

3. To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods for the purpose of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as "trade", "dealer", "agent", "wholesaler", "TT" etc. in the advertisement.

4. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the advertiser.

5. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser but insertions / dates cannot be guaranteed.

6. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

7. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

8. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowance.

9. All gross advertising rates (except classified line and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

10. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

11. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

12. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer. (1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1964.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect of an advertisement, should the advertising agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability for the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher codes for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belongs to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.
Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies. Box numbers alone are not available for use in "Trade" advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.
Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.
Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debts on our behalf.
Data Controller
We use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Trade Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.
Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of "Conti" services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

INJURY WOE FOR WOUNDED RAFA

By Lee Husson

TOTTENHAM fear that playmaker Rafael van der Vaart could be ruled out for up to a month after picking up a fresh hamstring injury in their 2-1 win over Liverpool on Sunday.

The Dutch star only lasted 12 minutes of the Premier League clash at White Hart Lane before being replaced by Jermain Defoe.

Van der Vaart has been hampered by injury problems since he switched to Spurs from Real Madrid in the summer, and manager Harry Redknapp believes playing in the World Cup – where Holland got to the final – could be to blame for the player's constant fitness problems.

Redknapp also lost defender Younes Kaboul to a hip injury against Liverpool, and is waiting for confirmation on how long the two players will be out.

"Rafa felt it tear, so that doesn't look too good," Redknapp said.

"Younes felt he might have torn a muscle in his hip. He felt that go."

"It's so disappointing for Rafa. He keeps picking up little injuries. It's probably because he's missed a pre-season or was away at the World Cup and not played many games."

"When your fitness is a bit low it's hard to get up to speed. He keeps getting little nicks."

Aaron Lennon slotted home a stoppage-time winner for Spurs on Sunday as they came from behind to snatch the points for the second weekend running.

An incident-packed game looked to be heading towards a 1-1 draw after Liverpool defender Martin Skrtel had netted at both ends and sub Defoe missed another penalty for the hosts.

Several other clear-cut chances went begging for both sides before Lennon became the hero to move Spurs to within a point of fourth-placed Manchester City.

Thorman named Skolars skipper

NEIL THORMAN has been appointed London Skolars captain for the 2011 season by new head coach Joe Mbu.

Thorman, 26, made his debut for the club in May, making ten appearances at full-back last season and scoring three tries.

Thorman captained Gateshead Thunder in Co-operative Championship One in 2008, as well as co-captaining the side in 2009 following their promotion the previous season, and Mbu believes that he is the right man to lead the side next season.

"Since the day he joined the club, Neil has impressed me with his attitude and commitment and I believe he will instil those values into the team," Mbu said.

Mbu has also confirmed his coaching staff for 2011, appointing Jermaine Coleman and Todd Egan as assistant coaches.

Coleman, 28, has been with the club for six years, having made 110 appearances as player, but is currently recovering from a serious ligament injury that has severely reduced his on-field activities for the past two years. He took on the assistant coach role in 2010 after a short spell as caretaker coach the season before.

Egan, 32, returns to the club after three years away, having made three first-team appearances in 2006.

That was followed by a spell as coach of the Skolars' reserve team in 2007, having started his coaching career back in his native Sydney.

Also confirmed on the coaching staff as conditioner is Jamie Boston, who will combine playing with his new role, having made 13 appearances last season after joining from West London Sharks.
